Avoiding Business Interruption Due to Coronavirus

Since the outbreak of the coronavirus, companies have been reaching out to IPM looking for solutions to ensure business continuity should it become necessary to close their offices.

The experts at IPM can set you up with licenses and remote access solutions like virtual desktops (VDI) to maximize productivity and collaboration among colleagues working in separate locations.

Not only can these solutions be put together quickly, but we can build them in the cloud temporarily so you only pay for what you are using.
